What the Special Correspondent Said. "As the flyer flew eastward at the rate of fifty miles an hour, Mr. Neuman talked freely of his visit to this country, and of affairs in the islands now attracting so much attention. Had it not been for an occasional whistle from the engine to warn people away from read crossings, one might have forgotten that the interview was being held in a train, so smooth was the road bed and so imperceptible the motion of the cars. As Mr. Neuman talked, the reporters wrote in their note books, a difficult feat on an ordinary railroad train, but it was like sitting at a table in this instance. This extract is taken from the 16th February issue of the Omaha World-Herald and refers to an interview between that paper's representative and Mr. Neuman, Queen Liliuokalani's envoy, enroute to Washington, D. A DENTINES INVENTION.

By it Your Teeth Can Be Filled Without the Stightest Particle of Pain. There was an interesting discussion on There was an interesting discussion on dental surgery yesterday afternoon, and those discussing the questions seemed to know all about it from personal experience. One lady remarked to a heighbor that she had been suffering the worst torture for about six hours in having a couple of teeth filled. Her features still indicated intense suffering as she said: I verily believe I would rather have every one of my teeth extracted than endure that torture again. It makes me shudder to think of it. Really, it was worse than torture. was worse than torture.

"You must have been unfortunate in the selection of a dentist," said the other lady.

"But then, perhaps, they haven't all the same appliances and methods of doing the work. I have had five very sensitive teeth filled today, and yet I have not suffered a particle of pain from the operation. I was fortunate enough to go to a dentist who has a new discovery, by the use of which all sense of pain is absolutely destroyed. It is a simple pro-cess, and all pain ceases in a few seconds. Of course there is a possibility of being hurt a little by the drill with which the cavity is being cleaned out, but he had an invention applied to his dental engine which gives the patient complete control of that machine. "While he is at work with the drill you simply hold in your hand a cord attached to the new device and the instant you begin to feel pain you pull the string and the drill stops at once. I tell you it is nice to have such work done and be able, to stop all progress the instant you feel pain and then have the pain removed almost as quickly. I would as soon have my teeth filled by this process as to go out shopping. Yes, of course I will tell you where I had the work done. It was at Dr. Wertz's dental rooms, 1607 Douglas street, and I shall tell all of my friends of his new discoveries. I am confident that when people come to know that they can have teeth filled without a touch of pain there are thousands who will save their teeth by having them promptly filled in-stead of letting them decay and lose them

Mayor Bemis Quickly Humbled an Electric The city authorities and the management of the Thomson-Houston Electric Light compony came near clashing yesterday, and . the former came out victorious. The old building formerly used by the Hanscom Park moved to the north end of town. When the movers reached Thirty-second and Cuming streets their progress was hindered by the overhead wires. It was necessary to have the wires cut and the companies owning them were requested to do so. All but the electric light company agreed to do so. That concern demanded $25 as a recompense for the labor and the damage that would be done. The contractor objected and paid a visit to Mayor Bemis, who called in consultation the city attorney. The conference re-sulted in the mayor instructing Chief Galligan to cut the wires in case the company persisted in its refusal to do so. After a good deal of talk Mr. Wiley finally consented to cut the wires and permit the building to be taken across the street. A Popular Remedy for Colds Mr. J. B. Copeland of Meyersdale, Penn.,

CO-OPERATIVE HOME BUILDING

Introduction of a Bill to Repeal the Old Homestead Association Law.

RESTRICTION ATTACKED

the Trail of the Banking Board-Local and General Reports-Co-Operative Education in France.

Lobbyists of Foreign Concern Camping or

A bill has been introduced in both senate and house providing for the repeal of sections 359, 360, 361 and 362, "Consolidated Statutes of Nebraska." These sections comprise the entire homestead association law enacted in 1873, under which loan and building associations were given a legal foothold in the state. The law provides how such associations shall be organized and defines their purpose to be that "of raising moneys to be loaned among the members of such corporation, for use in buying lots or houses, or in building or repairing or removing incumbrances from houses," Authority was given "to levy, assess and collect from its members such sums of money, by rates of stated dues, fines, interest on loans advanced and premiums bid by members for the right of precedence in taking by-laws shall adopt." The right to acquire and hold real estate pledged as security for loans is granted, and also exemption from the operation of the usury law. Another important provision, and the real point of attack of the authors of the repeal bill, reads (section 359); "And provided, also, that no person shall hold more than ten shares in any such asso-ciation in his own right, each share not to Supplemental Law.

The law of 1891 is supplemental to that of 1873. It more closely defines the principles under which building and loan associations shall operate; broadened the scope of the old law without affecting its validity, and con-ferred on the state banking board complete ferred on the state banking board complete supervisory power over local associations and those organized in other states seeking business in Nebraska. The later law does not apply wholly to associations incorporated under the original act. The matter of accepting the law of 1891 in its entirety is optional, but associations are obliged to comply with the provisions in regard to annual reports and examinations. An examination of both acts will show that they do not conflict, as was stated in the senate when the repeal bill was introduced. As a matter of fact, the framers of the act

As a matter of fact, the framers of the act of 1891 were particularly careful not to dis-turb the old law or repeal it by inference.

The main object of the repeal bill is to strike out the wise limitation piaced on the number of shares an individual can hold in his name. The first object of a building loan association is to furnish its members with a means of saving money and of purchasing a home and paving for it in small monthly or weekly installments. It is a home builder and savings bank for wage earners, for people of moderate means. Under the present restriction a member may be a saving a saving savin borrow $4,000 or $8,000 jointly with his wife if his security is acceptable. Very few pa-trons of these societies are so circumstanced as to require eyen a $4,000 home. The aver-age amount borrowed is about $1,000. There age amount borrowed is about $1,000. There is therefore no real necessity for wiping out an important limitation to the holdings of members of associations organized for the benefit of the many. Under the existing law the power of any member in the management is limited to his holdings. It is practically impossible for cliques to perpetuate themselves in control if the stockholders exercise their rights. If the limitation is repealed the check on speculative interests is removed. check on speculative interests is removed. Any association may then be manipulated by the secretary or active manager, and instead of being an association in which all members have a common interest, it becomes a close corporation for the benefit of those on the

Opposed to Repeal. There are at present some seventy associations in Nebraska. all but two received by the state banking board show assets aggregating $2,840,000 represents a busing, fostered mainly The sum infancy, fostered mainly blished law. None of the established associations have asked for a repeal of the old law or any change in the existing law. The demand for a change comes from parties who are organizing a national association in Omaha, and being unable to make their plan of operation fit the law, they seek to make the law fit their plan. The interests of asso-ciations having nearly $3,000,000 employed in home building in Nebraska are of greater importance to the state at large than the wishes of the managers of an embryotic

Had an Imported Lobby.

"Foreign associations are a nuisance They make life a burden for us. If I had my way I would wipe them out of existence regard them as the most successful chemes yet devised to rob a man of his money without arousing his indignation. It was a state officer who thus relieved himself, in reply to a question. Since the state banking board rejected the applications of foreign associations for certificates to do business in Nebraska, agents and drummers have haunted the capitol, utterin lamentations and bewailing the sad condi-tion of citizens who are thus denied the privilege of being plucked. Ben Butler once remarked, to illustrate his contempt for petitions, that men will sign petitions to hang an innocent man. The petitions filed by agents of rejected associations prove that Ben's head was pretty level. Prominent men have signed requests which have but one meaning—that the banking board ignore the law and authorize fraudulent concerns to do business in the state. It is not probable do business in the state. It is not probable the board will reconsider its action, and the lobby is wasting its time and energies. Evidently Nebraska was a rich field to operate in. Had it been a poor one, a New York state concern could not afford to send a delegation to plead for reinstatement.

Co-Operation in France.

The attention which is given to the cause of co-operation in France may be inferred from the recent establishment in Paris of an institution that may be briefly designated as a "museum and library of co-operation." This institution is under the immediate charge of a "museum and library society," to which, at the instance of the Society for the Study of Profit Sharing, the government has turned over the exhibits in certain sec-tions of the Paris exposition of 1889. Among the trustees of the Museum and Library society are such men as Leon Say, Waldeek-Rosseau and Charles Robert. The formal opening of the museum and library took place last March, in the presence of repreplace last March, in the presence of repre-sentatives of the ministry, the parliament and the Society for the Study of Profit Sharing. Rooms in a public building have been assigned to the museum and library ociety, and that society has addressed cir culars to co-operative associations and so cieties and to firms sharing profits with em-ployes, asking for copies of constitutions, by-laws, rules and regulations and annual reports. These the society promises to in-corporate into its library and, to make accessible to the public by means of proper cataloguing and indexing.

The topics embraced in the exhibits cover a wide range. Section 2 comprises studies on the wage question, including salaries, wages, rents, scales of wages, division of profits, etc. Section 3 covers the history of institutions touching the interest of the wage-earners, such as (1) apprenticeship and trade schools, (2) free employment agencies, (3) mutual insurance against accidents and measures for their prevention, life insurance, (4) mutual aid societies, in-cluding societies for support and protection in old age, (5) co-operative stores, (6) cheap dwellings, (7) people's banks and agricul tural credit unions, (8) arbitration between employer and employed, (9) special reward for long and faithful service, (10) social hygiene. (11) the weekly day of rest.

questions involved. The friends of the building association in this country may learn a lesson from the wide range of topics included in this list, and while giving careful attention and thought to the perfecting of the building association and to defending it against the caroachments of those who would "steal the livery of heaven to serve the devil in," they should give still more careful thought to the principles of co-operation and the possibilities for their extension beyond the comparatively narrow limits of the building association.

It is also to be hoped that the co-operative exhibits at the Columbian exposition may be preserved to this country in some form similar to that adopted in France, to the end that they may become a nucleus about which the constantly growing literature of that branch of economic science may be gathered.

A library of this character, if easy of access to the people, would tend to perpetuate and intensify the interest now taken, not only by students and men of affairs, but by the great army of wage earners, in the cause of co-operation. uestions involved. The friends of the Prosperous Institution.

The Albion association makes a creditable showing in its annual statement. There are two series, A and B. In the first there are 250 shares in force, on which seventy monthly payments have been made, and each share is worth $98. In series A the re-ceipts to the close of the year were $24,783.60 loans, $23,400. In series B the receipts amount to $17,716.07, of which $17,200 was loaned. There are 244 shares in this series, valued at $72.30 each, on which fifty-six pay-ments have been made. The Albion illus-trates the economical features of buildingloan societies. A fraction over $42,000 was handled at an expense of $700, which was more than met by receipts from fines and transfer fees. A number of payments were made by each subscriber, some of the money being paid the agent and some forwarded to Omaha. Whether or not the money reached its destination is not known. At last accounts the subscribers had nothing to show for it. Repeated requests for certificates having failed, some of the subscribers appealed to the banking board. An investigation was ordered. The Central was recently merged into the Great Western, and it is probable the trouble arose from the change.

The Eastern of Syracuse, N. As the State league has not even drafted a bill and is opposed to a change in the law at present, the Syracuseans are needlessly ex-travagant. Lacking in Harmony. CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 18.—The indications are now that there will be no meeting of the Western Passenger association to hear the report of the committee having charge of the revision of the agreement until April. The postponement is due to a misunder standing among the members of the committee, which makes it necessary for then to hold further meetings and may result in their returning a majority and minority report. Knowing the lack of harmony on some of the points at issue, many of the interested officials believe that the revised

An irate female and and a rawhide made lively times at Blum's hotel on Twenty-sixth street, opposite police headquarters, yesterday morning. Miss Anna Hurt, a domestic at one of the hotels, was trying to get even with Gus Hazburg, a packing house employe, for failing to marry her according to promise. Hazburg took his punishment manfully, making no disturbance. He probably took his choice between what he considered two evils.
